CORY JACKSON

FAITH. COUNTRY. CONNECTION.

COUNTRY ARTIST | SONGWRITER | ENTERTAINER

OFFICIAL BIO / 2026

Bridging the gap between the timeless sounds of country's past and the energy of today, Arkansas-born Cory Jackson is an independent singer, songwriter, and entertainer with a passion for great songs, genuine storytelling, and connecting with the people on the other side of the microphone.

Born in Jonesboro, Arkansas, Cory grew up surrounded by the rural life that continues to shape his music. At 16, his grandfather introduced him to the guitar. What started with learning a few chords and favorite country songs soon turned into songwriting, performing, and dreams of taking those songs to bigger stages. Cory released his first EP in 2015 and has continued developing a sound rooted in the country music that first inspired him while embracing a modern edge of his own.

That journey has taken Cory from restaurants, fairs, festivals, and independent artist competitions to opening for The Oak Ridge Boys, Tracy Lawrence, Parmalee, and Rosanne Cash. In 2018, he was named Country Artist of the Year by the Arkansas Country Music Awards.

In 2019, Cory stepped onto a national stage during Season 17 of NBC's *The Voice. His performance of Glen Campbell's "Galveston" earned a three-chair turn before he joined Team Blake. Mentorship from Blake Shelton and later work with Darius Rucker during the competition reinforced Cory's drive to continue growing as an artist and songwriter.

His music has continued to earn recognition in the years since. "Put Some Country in Your Country" was named Video of the Year at the 2022 Arkansas Country Music Awards, "Your Love" earned a Top 5 nomination for Song of the Year in 2023, and Cory was named Male Vocalist of the Year at the 2024 Arkansas Country Music Awards, where he performed his original song "When the Needle Drops."

Releases including "Toolbox" and "Right in Front of Me" further showcased Cory's blend of traditional country influence and contemporary storytelling. His latest single, "Begin to Fall," opens a new chapter while continuing to build a catalog centered on honest lyrics, memorable melodies, and the moments in life worth holding onto.

Whether performing solo acoustic, with a duo, or backed by a full band, Cory's live shows move comfortably between country classics, modern favorites, original music, and the stories behind the songs. His approachable, family-friendly energy and natural audience connection make each performance feel personal.

For Cory, music has always been about more than accomplishments. It is about connection - the memory brought back by an old country song, the story inside a new one, and the relationship created between an entertainer and an audience. From an intimate acoustic room to a festival stage, he remains grounded in the things that started the journey: faith, country music, and connecting with people through a song.
